

2nd International Conference on Renewable Economics - ReECON

Dear colleagues and friends,

It is our great pleasure to invite you to participate in the 2nd Scientific and Professional Conference on Renewable Economics - "ReECON" that will be held in Biograd na Moru, Croatia, on September 20-22, 2022 and is organized jointly by University of Applied Sciences Baltazar Zaprëšić and Virovitica University of Applied Sciences.

The aim of the conference is to bring together scientists and professionals from various fields of business economics, tourism, information science, public policy, rural and regional development as well as other related fields, to draw conclusions and make recommendations to promote sustainable business in a dynamic environment, improve the business climate and strengthen the resilience of the economy as a whole. The ReECON Conference aims at maintaining a proactive approach in the application of the theoretical and empirical achievements for the improvement of business processes as well as the creation of an atmosphere of ethical conduct, transparency and accountability, hoping to provide long-term sustainable guidelines for the real sector.

Compelling conclusions of the Conference, sought to be obtained through scientific and professional papers, sharing views, effective discussions and debates will not only benefit present participants but also wider public and businesses.

To present their research at the conference author(s) are invited to send abstracts and full papers. General instructions and guidelines for abstract submission can be found at: <http://reecon.hr/>.
